MARINO CARPENTRY SERVICES

Built the Right Way From Day One

BY MORGAN BREEN

▲ COASTAL CRAFTSMANSHIP, BUILT TO LAST. Just moments from the shoreline, this custom-built home blends classic New England architecture with the durability and thoughtful design required for coastal living. Crisp white siding, bold black windows, and welcoming front porches create a timeless seaside aesthetic—where quality craftsmanship meets the relaxed rhythm of life near the beach.

▲ LIGHT, SPACE, AND SIMPLICITY. Expansive quartz countertops and a dramatic full-height stone backsplash create a sleek foundation, while the warmth of natural wood cabinetry adds balance and depth. Skylights and oversized windows flood the space with natural light, enhancing the airy palette and highlighting the craftsmanship in every detail.

Marino Carpentry Services was founded in 2016 in Arlington, Massachusetts, with a clear vision: to build and improve homes with exceptional craftsmanship, attention to detail, and an unwavering commitment to customer satisfaction. But the foundation of the company was laid long before its official start.

Growing up surrounded by family-run businesses, the company's founder had a firsthand look at what it meant to be self-employed. He often went to work with his parent, witnessing both the sacrifices and the rewards that come with running a business. From a young age, he was taught not only how things worked, but how to fix them. That hands-on upbringing instilled a strong work ethic, independence, and pride in doing a job the right way.

A Reading, MA native and graduate of Arlington Catholic High School, he played both baseball and basketball, learning lessons that would shape his approach to business: discipline, accountability, teamwork, and respect. The connections he built lasted well beyond graduation, eventually leading him back to Arlington Catholic as an assistant baseball coach. Being part of a team reinforced the importance of trust, communication, and leading by example—values that remain central to the company today.

While many peers pursued college, he recognized early on that his passion was working with his hands and building something tangible. He began working for a local contractor who emphasized a simple but powerful philosophy: there is only one way to do the job—the right way. That standard of quality and integrity became the blueprint for everything that followed.

Clean lines, durable materials, and a welcoming dual-entry design create a residence that feels both refined and relaxed—perfectly suited for life near the water.

With one pickup truck and the determination to succeed, he went out on his own. What began as small, odd jobs quickly grew through word-of-mouth referrals into larger and more complex projects. After earning his contractor's license, he reinvested in the business—purchasing equipment, then more equipment—steadily expanding into additions, remodels, and eventually full home construction. He brought on a small team of employees, some of whom are still with the company today, a testament to the culture of loyalty and respect he has built.

Over the past decade, Marino Carpentry Services has grown from a small carpentry operation into a full-service residential general contracting company serving homeowners throughout Greater Boston and surrounding Massachusetts communities. The company now specializes in full home remodels, kitchen and bathroom renovations, basement finishing, home additions, and complete new home construction. Exterior services include siding installation, window replacement, and custom exterior carpentry.

▲ WARM MODERN: A KITCHEN DESIGNED FOR GATHERING. The oversized island anchors the room, offering generous space for cooking, entertaining, and everyday connection. Thoughtful details—from the open shelving and statement range hood to the subtle contrast of dark tile flooring—bringing balance and warmth to the design.

▶ WHERE NATURE MEETS CRAFT. Rich walnut tones, deep emerald tile, and warm brass fixtures come together to create a bathroom that feels both grounded and refined. Inspired by natural materials and timeless design, this space transforms a daily routine into a quiet moment of retreat.

Carpentry craftsmanship remains at the heart of the company's identity. From structural framing to detailed finish trim, every project reflects a commitment to precision and durability. In addition to remodeling and carpentry, Marino Carpentry Services provides excavation and site work—including foundation preparation and grading—allowing projects to be managed from the ground up with greater efficiency and quality control.

Supporting this expanded scope is a well-equipped fleet that includes two skid steers, two excavators, two dump trucks, three fully outfitted carpentry vans, and four pickup trucks. This investment in professional-grade equipment enables the team to manage multiple job sites while maintaining timelines and high standards of workmanship.

Much of the company's growth has come from repeat clients and referrals—a reflection of the trust built with homeowners over the years. By serving as a single, reliable point of contact and coordinating all necessary trades, Marino Carpentry Services simplifies what can often be a complex construction process. Clear communication, detailed planning, and pride in execution define every phase of a project.

Today, Marino Carpentry Services stands as a reflection of dedication, hard work, and a genuine passion for the craft. From a single pickup truck to a respected residential contracting company, the mission has remained the same: deliver high-quality construction work with integrity, professionalism, and the belief that every job should be done the right way—no exceptions.

Why Livable Homes Are the Future of Interior Design

By Alysha St. Germain Heidke, Hello Pearl Interiors

For years, interior design was portrayed as aspirational and reserved for the upper class. Designers became known for creating perfectly styled rooms photographed from just the right angle — spaces with pristine sofas no one dares sit on and homes that don't always reflect how people actually live.

But that perception has shifted.

With the rise of DIY culture and interior design influencers, more people are realizing that a thoughtfully planned space may be within reach, even without an unlimited budget. Today's homeowners are pushing for a different approach — one that prioritizes spaces that feel both beautiful and functional.

This shift marks the rise of livable design. Instead of chasing perfection, livable homes balance comfort, utility, and style to create interiors that can withstand everyday life while still feeling intentional.

Many homeowners want guidance creating spaces that reflect their personalities without committing to a lengthy renovation or overwhelming budget. Livable design helps bridge that gap by offering solutions that respect real-life constraints while still delivering comfort and style.

One recent project illustrates this well. My team was hired to rework an office area in a Tiverton home that had been neglected for years. The builder had run upstairs plumbing through a Roman column in a long dining space, creating an awkward layout. Unsure how to use the room, the family allowed it to become a catch-all for paperwork and school items.

Our solution was simple. We divided the space with a new wall and introduced functional systems. A custom drafting desk became the centerpiece, while built-in cabinetry flanking the window added storage. Counter stools found online paired with a leather chair added personality without stretching the budget.

Color also played an important role. Because the room received cool north-facing light, we selected a warm aqua wall color to energize the space.

This transformation reflects a broader shift in how people think about design. Good interiors don't require a massive renovation or luxury budget. Often, the most impactful changes come from reimagining what already exists and layering in pieces that add warmth and personality.

At its core, livable design is about creating homes that invite real life — spaces that feel comfortable, personal, and lived in.

Owl's Nest Vineyard Course, formerly known as White Mountain Country Club, and recently acquired by the Owl's Nest Resort group of companies, is now recognized as the best new golf course in New Hampshire. Originally designed by renowned golf course architect Geoffrey Cornish, the course has been reimaged by Robert McNeil of The Northeast Golf Company. The vision to create a premier 36-hole golf destination by combining the Resort Course and the Vineyard Course is now a reality. Come experience the best new golf course in New Hampshire.

Owl's Nest Resort now offers 36 holes of premier golf with the famed Nicklaus-Designed Course and the new Owl's Nest Vineyard Course. A $7 million extensive renovation has transformed the course into one of New Hampshire's finest golf destinations. The 18-hole Vineyard Course, located in Ashland, New Hampshire, features a 6,277-yard layout with a par of 70. The course rating is 69.5, with a slope rating of 120. After the extensive redesign and refitting by the McNeil Group, the course plays like a brand-new championship layout. The course plays much like a brand-new golf course after extensive redesign and refitting by the McNeil Group. One of the strongest features of the course is the final four holes, which are reminiscent of the links-style courses found in Ireland and Scotland, offering a challenging and unforgettable finish.

The majestic course sits alongside the Pemigewasset River (commonly known as the Pemi River), which flows into the river basin in Franconia Notch, New Hampshire, in the heart of the White Mountains. The new course is recognized as one of the “Best New” public golf courses in the state.

The Vineyard at the Course / Accommodations vineyard in New Hampshire. It is set to produce 100% organic wines. Owl’s Nest Vineyard Course is equipped with four condos, each sleeping up to seven guests. In 2023, the condos underwent a complete interior/exterior renovation, modernizing the spaces and updating amenities to provide a luxurious and comfortable stay.
